

The Sexual Politics of Meat

This evolving and challenging presentation draws upon images of women and animals in contemporary popular culture to discuss oppressive attitudes. It explains the animalizing of women in contemporary cultural images and the sexualizing of animals used for food.

The slide show and discussion provide an ecofeminist analysis of the inter-connected oppressions of misogyny, white supremacy, and speciesism. It proposes that many meat advertisements are conduits for hate-speech against women.

March 22, 3:30-5 PM in Niagara University's St. Vincent Hall Room 407

Carol J. Adams is a feminist-vegan advocate, activist, and independent scholar and the author of numerous books including her path breaking The Sexual Politics of Meat: A Feminist-Vegetarian Critical Theory, which has been translated into eight languages.

Co-sponsored by the Political Science Department, Women's Studies Program, and NUCARES